In 1948, a road of crushed stone covered with packed soil was built along the Kama and Vishera Rivers to connect Solikamsk, Borovsk (N 59-43, E 56-40), and Krasnovishersk. The heaviest traffic over the road was in winter when the water routes were frozen. A railroad connection for the three cities was also planned.

Comment: According to Atlas Mira (Moscow, 1954), an unsurfaced road from Solikamsk passes east of Borovsk to Cherdyn (N 60-25, E 56-30) and then turns east to Krasnovishersk. No railroad is shown for the route.
